was satisfied that the justice who had charge of the motion would be unable to attend to it for months. He hoped that his honor would take hold of the case, that it might go before the Court in General Term.

Colonel Cock said that the term of the court had passed away and nothing been done. The hill of exceptions had not been signed. This was the first day of the term, and it was important to have the matter settled at once.

His Honor had no doubt that if they made application the Court in General Term would place it on the calendar and give them a hearing.

There must be some guarantee given that the cases will be continued before the Criminal Court, and he would decide that in the future he would not give judgment in any case unless the previous coats of the prosecution were paid by the parties asking for a reopening of the case.

This was agreed to, and Johanneson was granted a new trial.

Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood and Hon. A. G. Riddle appeared for the defendant. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation for mercy. His honor sentenced him to one year in the penitentiary. The petit jury was then discharged for two weeks. The grand jury will continue in session, and the court meet from day to day to receive any presentments they may have to make.

During the last three weeks that the court has transacted business, in addition to the conviction of parties sontonced to jail, there has been furty-four persons convicted and sent to the Albany penitentiary for terms ranging between one and tweive years. This speaks well for the diligence and efficiency of the District Attorney soffice, and shows that little time has been wasted in prosecuting the cases before the court. In all other cases the District Attorney was prepared to go to trial, but some were postponed on application of counsel, while others had to be temperarily postponed on account of the necessity for opening the cases before the court.
